

Making Biblical Scholarship Accessible

This document was supplied for free educational purposes. Unless it is in the public domain, it may not be sold for profit or hosted on a webserver without the permission of the copyright holder.

If you find it of help to you and would like to support the ministry of Theology on the Web, please consider using the links below:

A table of contents for the Journal of Theological Studies (old series) can be found here:

https://biblicalstudies.org.uk/articles_jts-os_01.php

pdfs are named: [Volume]_[1st page of article]

A HEBRAIC CONSTRUCTION IN THE APOCALYPSE.

DR CHARLES'S monumental commentary on the Apocalypse undoubtedly marks an epoch in the interpretation of that difficult book. Among other services which he has rendered to New Testament scholarship, not the least important is his cogent proof that the writer of the Apocalypse phrased his language on a Semitic model, and that his Greek can only be rightly understood by a Hebrew scholar. This fact is richly illustrated in many points of detail; and of these perhaps the most illuminating-from the point of view of accurate translationis his discovery<sup>1</sup> that the idiomatic Hebrew construction, in which a participle is reinforced by a finite verb, is exactly reproduced in the Greek of the Apocalypse. Discussion of this point is to be found on p. cxlv of the Introduction, and again on p. 15 of the Commentary (note on i 5, 6). On p. cxly he quotes Dr Driver's Hebrew Tenses<sup>3</sup>, § 117 (by error reference is given to § 163)—'it is a common custom with Hebrew writers, after employing a participle or infinitive, to change the construction, and, if they wish to subjoin other verbs which logically should be in the partcp. or infin. as well, to pass to the use of the finite (lit. δ θηρεύσας θήραν και εισήνεγκε).' After explaining the construction, Dr Driver gives classified instances; and these I here set forth in full, together with a literal translation which is intended to make the usage clear to N.T. scholars who are unacquainted with Hebrew.

(1) 'Wherever the participle . . . asserts something indefinite or undetermined—wherever, therefore, it may be resolved into whoever, whenever, if ever, &c. (ôs av, not  $\delta s$ ,  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \delta av$  not  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \delta n'$ , &c.)—we find the perfect with ! consecutive employed'.

Exod. xxi 12 מְבָה אִישׁ וְמֵת 'The smiter of a man (= Whosoever smites a man), and he dies'.

Exod. xxi 16 גֹג אָישׁ וּמְכָרוֹ 'One stealing a man (= Whosoever steals a man), and sells him '.

<sup>1</sup> I say 'discovery' in view of Dr Charles's statement (p. 15) that in none of the cases in point has the construction been recognized as Hebraic by any commentator. In the present discussion I mention that I have noted the same construction in two passages in the Fourth Gospel, viz. i 32, v 44. Observation of the identity between the Greek and the Hebrew construction does not imply exceptional insight, but should leap at once to the eye of any N. T. student who is a Hebrew scholar. If, as seems to be the case, it has hitherto failed to be recorded, this is one point among many others serving to emphasize a fact which is too commonly overlooked, viz. the impossibility of doing justice to the N. T. without a first-hand linguistic knowledge of Semitic. It will be noticed that, in some of the passages in question, A. V. has instinctively rendered correctly, while R. V. has erroneously altered the rendering.

372 THE JOURNAL OF THEOLOGICAL STUDIES

Jer., xxi 9 היוצא וְנָפַל עַל־הַבַּשְׂדִים 'The one going forth, and falls unto the Chaldaeans'.

Jer. xxii ג חַלּוֹנָי 14 הָאוֹמֵר ... וְקָרַע לוֹ חַלּוֹנָי The one saying (= Who says) ... and cuts himself out windows'.

Exod. xxxiv ז לאָר הָקָד לְאָלָפִים לישָׂא עָוֹן וֹג׳ וְנַקָּה לֹא יְנָקָּה לָא יְנָקָה לֹא יָנָקָה אָלָפִים ליביא עָוֹן וֹג אַנָקָר אָלָפִים ליביא עָוֹן ווֹג אַנָר אָסָד אָלָפִים ליביא עָוֹן אָני אָנין אָני אָני אָני guiltless' (sc. the guilty). So LXX καὶ δικαιοσύνην διατηρῶν καὶ ἔλεοs εἰs χιλιάδαs, ἀφαιρῶν ἀνομίαs κτλ. καὶ οὐ καθαριεῖ τὸν ἔνοχον.

Isa. v. 23 מַאָדִיקִי רָשָׁע עֵקָב שֹׁחַר וְאָדְקַת צַדִּיקִים יָסִירוּ מִשָּנוּ Justifying the wicked for a bribe, and the righteousness of the righteous they take away from him' (= 'Who justify . . . and take away ').

Isa. xliv 25, 26 מַשָּׁיב חֲכָמִים אָחוֹר וְדַעְהָם 'Frustrating the tokens of boasters, and diviners He makes mad; turning wise men backward, and their knowledge He makes foolish; confirming the word of His servant, and the counsel of His messengers He accomplishes' (='Who frustrates . . . and makes, &c.').

Ezek. xxii 3 איר שׁפֶּכָת דָם ... וְעָשְׁתָה וּלּגֹים (A city shedding blood ... and makes idols' (= 'that sheds ... and makes ').

Ezek. xxxiii 30 הְנָי הַנְרְבָּרים בְּדָ . . . וְדְבָּרים בְּדָ . . . אַ מִראָחָד וו׳ 'The children of thy people—those speaking together of the . . . and each speaks with another, &c.' (= 'who speak together, &c.').

Hab. ii וב בּוָרָה בְּעַוְלָה אָיר בְּרָמִים וְכוֹצֵן קרָיָה בְּעַוְלָה Building a city through bloodshed, and he founds a town through iniquity' (='Who builds . . . and founds').

Ps. xviii אי מְשָׁוֶה רַגְלֵי הָאָיָלוֹת וְעֵל בָּמֹתֵי יַעֲמִירֵנִי Making my feet like the harts', and on my heights He sets me' (= 'Who makes . . . and sets ').

Ps. xviii אַקלָמָר יָדִי לָמְלְחָמָה וְנְחֲתָה קָשָׁת נְחוּשָׁה וְרוֹעָהְי Teaching my hands for the battle, and my arms bend a bow of bronze' (= 'Who teaches . . . so that my arms bend, &c.').

(2) 'Where, on the contrary, the participle . . . asserts an actual concrete event, we find the following verbs connected with it by the imperfect and 1.'

Gen. xxxv 3 לָאל הָעָנָה אֹתִי בְּיוֹם צָרְתִי וְיְהִי עָפָּוֹד' To the God-the one answering me in the day of my distress, and was with me' (=' who answered . . . and was with me').

Gen. xlix 17 b הַנּשָׁר עִקְבֵי סוּם וַיָּפֹּל רֹכְבוֹ אָחוֹר 'The one biting the heels of a horse, and his rider fell backward' (= 'That bit . . . so that his rider fell'). LXX dákvwv  $\pi \tau \epsilon \rho v a v$  impov, kai  $\pi \epsilon \sigma \epsilon i \tau a$  dimeties  $\epsilon i s$   $\tau a$  dimeties  $\tau a$  dimeties  $\epsilon i s$   $\tau a$  dimeties  $\tau a$  dimeties  $\epsilon i s$   $\tau a$  dimeties  $\tau a$

Num. xxii א אָשָׁרָכו ויָכָס ווי 'The people-the one coming forth from Egypt, and has covered the face of the land' (=' that came forth . . . and has covered ').

Isa. xliii א בָּלְהַנּאָרָי בְּאָמִי וְלְבְבוֹרִי בְּרָאִתִיוֹ 'Every one called by My name, and for My glory I have created him' (= 'who is called . . . and whom I have created ').

Jer. xxiii 31 f הַלְּקְּחִים לְשׁוֹנָם וַיְנְאֲמוּ נָאָם .... נִבְּאֵי חֲלְמוֹת שֶׁקָר... וְיְסַבְּרוֹם ז' Those taking their tongues ... and have said, He saith ; ... prophesiers of dreams of falsehood ... and have recounted them ' (=' Who have taken, &c.').

Amos v 12 אַרְרֵי צַרְּיק לְקָהֵי כֹפֶר וְאָבְיוֹנִים בַּשַׁעֵר הָפוּ Afflicting the just, taking a bribe, and the poor in the gate they have turned aside' (= 'That have afflicted, &c.').

Amos ix 6 הַבּוֹנֶה בַשְּׁמִיָם מַעֲלוֹתָו וַאֲנָדָתוֹ עַל־אֶרֶץ יְסָדָה הַקֹּרָא לְמֵי הַיָּם י וֹישְׁפְּבֵם וֹי He building in heaven His upper chamber, and His vault upon earth He has founded it; He calling to the waters of the sea, and has poured them, &c.' (= 'Who has built, &c.').

Prov. ii דָעָיֶבֶה שְׁבְחָה אֲלָהֶיָה שְׁבְחָה She forsaking the companion of her youth, and the covenant of her god she has forgotten'.

with the imperfect.

· 2 Sam. v 8. Text corrupt.

Dan. xii ג' אַשְׁרֵי הַמְחָבֶה וְיָאָשָׁרֵי י Happy the waiting one (= he who waits) and attains, &c.'

Besides these cases, Dr Driver cites, in a small print 'Observation', a number of miscellaneous cases, viz. Amos vi 1 b, 3, v 8, 9, vi 6, viii 14, ix 5, 6, Isa. xxix 15, 21, lvii 3, Jer. xlviii 19. In cases in which LXX copies the Heb. construction, the rendering has been given above. Normally the Greek either resolves the participle into the finite verb (e.g. Exod. xxi 12 'Eav de  $\pi a \tau a \xi \eta \tau i s \tau i v a \kappa a d a \pi o \theta a v \eta$ ), or the following finite verb into a participle (e.g. Isa. v 23 of disculveres . . .  $\kappa a l$  . . .  $a l \rho o v \tau s$ ). It is not likely, therefore, that occurrences of the construction in the Apocalypse are due to LXX influence.

Such occurrences, collected by Dr Charles, are as follows :---

Apoc. i 5  $\tau \hat{\omega}$  àya $\pi \hat{\omega} \nu \tau i$   $\eta \mu \hat{a}_s \dots \kappa a \hat{i}$   $\hat{\epsilon} \pi o \hat{i} \eta \sigma \epsilon \nu \hat{\eta} \mu \hat{a}_s$ , 'Unto Him that loveth us . . . and hath made us'. A. V. renders the sequence correctly. R. V. 'Unto him that loveth us . . . ; and He made us '---incorrect.

Apoc. ii 2 rovs  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \sigma \nu \tau as \epsilon a \nu \tau \sigma v s d \pi \sigma \sigma \tau \delta \lambda \sigma v s, \kappa a \delta \sigma v \epsilon \ell \sigma \ell$ . A. V. correctly 'and are not'. R. V. 'and they are not', with redundant 'they'.

Apoc. ii 9 των λεγόντων 'Ιουδαίους είναι έαυτούς, και ούκ είσίν.

Apoc. ii 20 ή λέγουσα έαὐτὴν προφῆτιν, καὶ διδάσκει, 'That saith . . . and teacheth'. R.V. 'and she teacheth', after semi-colon—incorrect.

Apoc. ii 23  $\epsilon \gamma \omega \epsilon i \mu \delta \epsilon \rho \epsilon v \nu \omega \nu \dots \kappa a \delta \omega \sigma \omega$  'I am He that searcheth ... and will give' (or—if  $\kappa a \delta \omega \sigma \omega$  represents the translation of a perfect with 1 consecutive in a frequentative sense—'and giveth').

Apoc. iii 9 = ii 9.

Rev. vii 14 oi  $\epsilon \xi \epsilon \rho \chi \delta \mu \epsilon \nu o i \dots \kappa a \epsilon \pi \lambda \nu \nu a \nu$ , 'that came out ... and have washed' (so A. V.). R. V. 'and they washed'—incorrect.

Rev. xiv 2, 3 ώς κιθαρφδών κιθαριζόντων ... καὶ ἄδουσιν, 'As of harpers harping ... and singing'. A. V. 'and they sung'. R. V. 'and they sing '—wrong.

Rev. xv 2, 3 έστώτας ... έχοντας ... καὶ ẳδουσι, 'standing ... having harps ... and singing'. A. V., R. V. 'And they sing' (after full stop)—wrong.

To these Dr Charles might have added Apoc. xiii 11 atta  $\theta \eta \rho i ov$ ava $\beta a i vov \dots \kappa a i \epsilon i \chi \epsilon$ , 'another beast coming up ... and having', &c.

I happen lately to have been working at the language of the Fourth Gospel, and have independently, and before seeing Dr Charles's work, noted the same construction in two passages, viz. i 32  $T\epsilon\theta\epsilona\mu a\iota \tau \delta$  $\Pi\nu\omega\mu a\kappa ara\betaaivov \ldots \kappa ai \epsilon_{\mu\epsilon\iota\nu\epsilon\nu}\epsilon \epsilon ai vir 'I saw the Spirit descending ... and abiding upon Him' (not, as in R. V., after semi-colon, 'and it abode upon Him'); v 44 <math>\lambda a\mu\beta avov\tau\epsilon s \ldots \kappa ai oi \zeta\eta\tau\epsiloni\tau\epsilon$  'receiving ... and not seeking.'

There are, however, two other passages in the Apocalypse which Dr Charles seeks to bring under the same construction, viz. i 18 καὶ ὁ ζῶν, καὶ ἐγενόμην νεκρόs, and xx 4, where, rejecting οἶτινεs before οὐ προσεκύνησαν as an editorial gloss, he would make the sequence to be τὰς ψυχὰς τῶν πεπελεκισμένων ... καὶ οὐ προσεκύνησαν τὸ θηρίον. It is in order to show how contrary this explanation is, in each case, to the genius of Hébrew thought that I have given a full survey of the O.T. illustrations of the construction.

It will be noticed that, in all the instances cited by Dr Drives (with possibly one exception) the finite verb expresses the proper sequence of the action denoted by the participle. This may be actually a sequence in time, so that the 1 connecting the finite verb with its antecedent expresses the sense 'and then', or, as introducing the direct result, 'and so'; or, a sequence in description in which, though the fact described may properly speaking be coeval with its antecedent, it follows naturally in the gradual unfolding of the picture (this is especially frequent in description of types of character). We do not find cases in which the sequence describes an event actually prior in time to its antecedent. For these quite a different construction would be employed. Such, however, are the two cases which Dr Charles would bring under the same head as the passages already noticed.

> אַני הָרָאשׁוֹן וְהָאַחֲרוֹן י וְהֵחָי וַאֵהָי מֵת

Thus, with inclusion of the preceding  $M\dot{\eta} \phi \sigma \beta o \hat{v}$  the words, on Dr Charles's theory, form a couplet, which is rendered in vol. ii p. 388,

'Fear not; I am the first and the last:

And he that liveth, and was dead.'

It may be maintained with the greatest emphasis that, supposing the existence of a Hebrew sentence אַאָי י מָת י הָחָי אָאָי מָת, in which אָאָי מָת was intended to stand in close relation to its antecedent, Dr Charles's rendering would be quite out of the question. The only possible sense which we could attach to such a sentence would be, 'I am he that lived and (subsequently) became dead.' The imperfect with consecutive increase our event taking its start out of the circumstances previously described. This is so elementary a fact of Hebrew syntax that it requires no argument to prove it. The construction with consecutive can never describe an event anterior in time to its antecedent. It will suffice to recall the fact that when, in a description of past history written with a succession of imperfects with consecutive, the writer wishes to introduce such an anterior event (a pluperfect), he invariably breaks the consecutive construction by introducing the subject between the i and the verb, the verb thus lapsing into the perfect (cf. Dr Driver's long discussion in Tenses, § 96 Obs.). Had the writer wished to convey the sense desiderated by Dr Charles in the Hebrew construction under discussion, ch. ii 8 suggests the way in which he would have phrased it. He would surely have written 'MM',  $e_{Y}\omega' e_{i}\mu \dots \delta a\pi o <math>\theta a \nu \omega \nu \kappa a \lambda \tilde{e}_{i}\gamma \sigma a$ , 'I am He that died and then lived.' Thus we seem bound to acquiesce in the punctuation and rendering of R. V., 'Fear not; I am the first and the last, and the living one; and I was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore.'

י וְהָחָי is obviously a mispunctuation for וְהָחָי, since Dr Charles's theory of connexion with what follows precludes a pausal form.

On the same grounds, xx 4, which, by Dr Charles's omission of οίτινες, would run τ' τ' ψυχάς των πεπελεκισμένων . . . και ου προσεκύνησαν  $\tau \partial \theta_{n \rho i \rho \nu}$ , could only, if considered as a Hebrew sentence, be naturally interpreted, 'the souls of those that had been beheaded, and so had not worshipped the beast'; for in גמו סט האסספגע השתחוי , though though , though the use of consecutive is precluded by the insertion of the negative, the natural sequence remains unaffected. In order to express the sense intended, viz. that they had not worshipped the beast prior to their beheading, and that their refusal to do so led to their execution, it would be necessary in Hebrew to employ a circumstantial clause, thus breaking the sequence- והפה לא השתחוו 'and they had not worshipped' (= 'they not having worshipped, &c.'), or to make the clause relatival ואשר לא השתחוו. It is this latter alternative which is adopted by the writer : και οίτινες ου προσεκύνησαν. Thus the use of οίτινες, so far from being 'an addition by John's literary executor in order to make the sentence better Greek', is indispensable upon the assumption that the writer was framing his language on a Hebrew model.<sup>1</sup>

C. F. BURNEY.

<sup>1</sup> In discussion of Dr Driver's instances of the Hebrew construction, I have mentioned one possible exception to the rule that the finite verb following the participle expresses its proper sequence. This is Isa. xxx 2 ההלכים לרדת מצרים 'That walk (or, are going) to go down to Egypt, and have not asked at My mouth'. Here the 'asking', had it occurred, would naturally precede the embassy. It will be noticed, however, that the sentence is intentionally phrased as a circumstantial clause by inversion of the natural order of sequence, 'E' לא שאלו ולי לא שאלו 'and at My mouth they have not asked' = 'without having asked, &c.'